WATSON , B-37999 completed Phase 1 Victim Impact of the Victim Awareness Offender's Program.
This program contains 12, 1.5 hour sessions and seeks to confront offenders with the realities of what it means to victimize and/or be victimized by another, utilizing print and video media. The aim and purpose of this exposure is to invoke the intense emotions necessary for the development of empathy. Phase 1 seeks to begin the deconstruction of apathy by exposing offenders to the human cost of crime. The curriculum is based on the Victim Impact curriculum developed by Mother's Against Drunk Driving (MADD) in conjunction with the California Youth Authority (CYA) funded with a grant awarded by the Office of Victims of Crime, Office of Justice Programs, United States Department of Justice. The curriculum includes the following chapters: Property Crime, Drugs and Society, Violent Crime, Domestic Violence, Crimes against the Elderly, Child Maltreatment, Assault, Sexual Assault, Robbery, Drunk Driving Death and Injury, Homicide, Victims of Gang Violence.

Budget constraints caused the temporary suspension of all self-help groups for a significant period of time. However, despite these circumstances this inmate continued to attend when he was given the opportunity.

Attended the first (1st) Victim Offender Dialogue (VOD) held on Facility 'B' at Mule Creek State Prison.

The activity is a component of Mule Creek State Prison's (MCSP) Victims Awareness Offender's Program (VAOP). The VAOP utilizes Restorative Justice Philosophies and principles and contains three distinct phases. Phase 1, Victim Impact (12 weeks), Phase 2 Introduction to Restorative Justice (12 weeks) and Phase 3, Alternative Reinforcement (On going). A component of Phase 3 is Victim Offender Dialogue, which is a venue for survivors of crime to share their experiences with offenders. The participating victims are not the actual victims of offenders in attendance, but serve as surrogates so offenders have the opportunity to hear first hand the personal toll suffered by victims of crime. For many, both victim and offender, this is the first time victim experience meets offender perception, providing opportunities for victim empowerment and offender accountability.

In accordance with VOD procedures, all inmates present stated their names, length of term, commitment offense and how their behavior resulted in victimization of another. This VOD group's speaker was a father whose son was murdered. He recounted the emotional trauma and pain of his son's death and the additional burdens of having to inform his wife and children, the identification of his son's body, the memorial and burial process and dealing with the multiple requests for verification of his son's death from government agencies. Most importantly, he clearly articulated the constant and ever-present awareness of the absence of his son.

This inmate participated productively, treated the victim speaker respectfully, and is commended for his conduct during this important and sensitive activity.

VICTIM AWARENESS OFFENDER'S PROGRAM: PHASE 3

This group meets every Saturday morning for approximately 90 minutes. The group exposes offenders to new information regarding behavior and life-skills.

Phase 3 Alternative Reinforcement is a continuous workshop structured group providing ongoing therapeutic maintenance for participating VAOP inmates. The primary curriculum is the START NOW Skills program, which incorporates the following clinical approaches in an evidence informed treatment model: cognitive behavior therapy, Dialectical Behavior Therapy (DBT), Trauma Sensitive Clinical Care (TSCC), and Motivational Enhancement Therapy (MET).

This phase's aim and purpose has a sharper focus on changing the thinking of the offenders. Upon entering this phase offenders are immersed in information that is aimed at building life skills key to appropriate intra-personal and societal interactions. The goal of this phase is to enable offenders to identify thinking and behaviors that lead to criminal behavior and begin to develop new reinforcement (positive and negative) behaviors.

This inmate attended the fourth (4th) Victim Offender Dialogue (VOD), a component of the Victims Awareness Offender's Program (VAOP) held at Mule Creek State Prison (MCSP) on April 27, 2012 on Facility 'B'.

This component's purpose is to provide opportunities for victim empowerment and offender accountability with regard to the impact of crime. Victim Offender Dialogue is a relationally restorative, Restorative Justice Practice, which encourages healing by bringing real victims of crime face to face with surrogate offenders, providing offenders with the opportunity to develop empathy and experience accountability by hearing survivors of crime to share their experiences. For many, both victim and offender, this is the first time victim experience meets offender perception.

The victim speaker shared her experience of being a surviving family member of a murder victim who was killed by an estranged husband with a shotgun in front of their two children.

This inmate was an active, productive, and appropriate participant in this voluntary activity and should be commended for his behavior and willingness to participate within Restorative Justice Practices.

This year the theme was Extending the VISION: Reaching Every VICTIM. These presentations were the application of Restorative Justice based Victim Impact programming at MCSP and an example of Relationally Restorative Practices (The intersecting of individually restorative practices-Victim Empowerment and Offender Accountability). The following agency conducted the presentation:

Parents of Murdered Children (POMC)

This presentation was given by a speaker from Parents of Murdered Children. She discussed the unsolved murder of her brother over twenty years ago. The presentation provided a venue for this surviving family member to share her experiences with offenders, allowing offenders to hear the personal and family toll of the murder of her brother. For many offenders, this was the first time "victim experience met offender perception". In addition, the speaker was adamant regarding the need for offenders to acknowledge their crimes and its impact on victims and to engage in rehabilitative activities and how it is very important to live a life in the pursuit of helping others not create victims. She also discuss the fact that there is never closure for family members of victims of murder and that true justice would entail having their murdered loved ones back. This presentation provided opportunities for victim empowerment, as well as the development of offender empathy. As participation was voluntary, this inmate is to be commended for his willingness and effort to increase his awareness of the impact of crime on individuals.

This was the mother of the victim whose victim impact statement was read at last year's panel written. The mother shared the difficulties her daughter is having processing this traumatic experience and the results of the disposition of the court proceedings for the offenders convicted for this crime. Offenders had the opportunity to personally hear the toll suffered by this innocent victim of crime. This presentation provided offenders with information regarding the impact of domestic and sexual violence on its victims and the societal costs resulting from treatment of those crimes.

On April 24, 2013 WATSON attended and participated in a National Crime Victim's Week activity conducted by Mule Creek State Prison (MCSP). This year the theme was New Challenges and New Solutions. These presentations were the application of Restorative Justice based Victim Impact programming at MCSP and an example of Relationally Restorative Practices (The intersecting of individually restorative practices-Victim Empowerment and Offender Accountability). The following agency conducted the presentation:

Parents of Murdered Children (POMC)

This presentation was given by a speaker from Parents of Murdered Children. She discussed the unsolved murder of her brother over twenty years ago. The presentation provided a venue for this surviving family member to share her experiences with offenders, allowing offenders to hear the personal and family toll of the murder of her brother. In addition, the speaker was adamant regarding the need for offenders to acknowledge their crimes and its impact on victims and to engage in rehabilitative activities and how it is very important to live a life in the pursuit of helping others not create victims. She also discuss the fact that there is never closure for family members of victims of murder and that true justice would entail having their murdered loved ones back.

MCSP GENERAL CHRONO

On April 08, 2014 WATSON attended and participated in a National Crime Victim's Week activity conducted by Mule Creek State Prison (MCSP). This year the theme was 30 Years: restoring the balance of justice. These presentations were the application of Restorative Justice based Victim Impact programming at MCSP and an example of Relationally Restorative Practices (The intersecting of individually restorative practices-Victim Empowerment and Offender Accountability). The following agency conducted the presentation:

Operation Care

This presentation was given by three program specialists/victim advocates from Operation Care. They discussed information regarding the support and services provided to victims of domestic and sexual violence by their agency. In addition, an actual victim impact statement written by a teenage survivor of sexual assault was read during the presentation. Offenders had the opportunity to personally hear the toll suffered by this innocent victim of crime. For many offenders, this was the first time "victim experience met offender perception". This presentation provided offenders with information regarding the societal costs of domestic and sexual violence and an opportunity for the development of offender empathy as a result of hearing an actual victim impact statement. As participation was voluntary, this inmate is to be commended for his willingness and effort to increase his awareness of the impact of crime on individuals.

The purpose of this documentation is to acknowledge the above inmate's donation to the Amador Christian Center for the purpose of lessening the fiscal impact associated with damages and losses incurred from the two inmates who walked away from MCSP's Minimum Support Facility.

On April 16, 2014 two inmates walked away from Mule Creek State Prison's (MCSP) Minimum Support Facility. Before they were apprehended by MCSP staff they had broken into and damaged the Amador Christian Center. In response to this action, MCSP inmates, who participate in Inmate Leisure Time Activity Groups (ILTAG) donated over $700.00 from their trust accounts to make direct and immediate restitution to the Amador Christian Center as a form Restorative Justice Stake-holder directed action. The amount donated completed covered the damages and loss sustained by the Amador Christian Center. This was a clear example of inmates living by the Restorative Justice Principles and engaging in individually and socially restorative practices communicated within MCSP's Restorative Justice based Victims Awareness Offender's Program (VAOP).
